Dear Mr Haddad,

Thank you for submitting your request for review of your police complaint, enclosed is the review report in respect of your police complaint.

I realise that making a complaint against the police is, for most people, a last resort when they have tried other ways of getting answers about an incident that has affected their lives.

You may be disappointed with the outcome of your review, which is not upheld.

When a review is not upheld, it does not mean that the person who made the complaint is not believed or that their complaint is considered frivolous or unimportant.

Our complaints reviewer has to consider the outcome of police complaints within a legal framework; and make decisions guided by law, regulation and national guidance.

Greater Manchester Police's decision about your complaint is reasonable and proportionate based on the available evidence.

If you wish to challenge the outcome of the review of your complaint, you may seek a judicial review. The Courts and Tribunals Judiciary website explains what judicial review is, and the circumstances where it may be considered.

Further information on this process is available by visiting:

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/form-n461-judicial-review-claim-form-administrative-court> .

Please note that we cannot provide advice to you regarding judicial review. Should you require any advice further to this letter, you would need to seek your own independent legal advice
